

Call for Papers

Life, the Universe, & Everything XXX: The Marion K. “Doc” Smith Symposium on Science Fiction and Fantasy will be held February 2012 on the Provo campus of Brigham Young University.

We are especially interested in papers in the following areas:

- Literary criticism/analysis of sf&f and related literature (medieval, renaissance, mythology, magic realism, etc.)
- Science and technology (especially new or unusual)
- Analysis of sf&f relating to poetry and/or theatre
- Mormon culture, literature, and society in relation to sf&f
- Serious analysis of sf&f in cinema, television, radio, and other media

Submit full papers for consideration to LTU&E—Academics, 4087 JKB, Provo, UT 84602 or email electronic submissions as RTF files to marny_parkin@byu.edu. Include name, phone number, street address, and email address on cover sheet. Papers submitted without contact information will not be considered. Student papers welcome. Please see ltue.org for more information.

Papers must be submitted no later than November 15, 2011.

Accepted papers may be published in the Proceedings volume at a later date.